Surely, the clear evidence of the New Testament takes us far beyond this purely human level. But although this becoming constitutes development, it does not represent evolution from nothing, in the way that this is usually interpreted in theories of evolution, for ex nihilo nihil fit.

To this it is natural to add John 1. The concreteness of symbols is sometimes seen That is more than a bit different. Mary believed and acted.
His Glory is the glory of all human existence. At the time when St Paul knew it, Philippi was a Roman colony.
